FRIDAY, JANUARY 17, 1913

It is altogether likely that many democrats will leave after March 4th that the lemon crop in Washington has been no failure.

Wise public prints in different parts of the country will have it that Col. Bryan will be a member of Mr. Wilson's cabinet, and the chances appear to be that they are right.

It is strange indeed what chances men in high places will take to improve their financial condition, when they don't need the money. Instance the case of the ousted Washington judge who is forever barred from holding public office.

The act of congress keeping first and second class postoffice clerks and fourth class postmasters under civil service means with the hearty approval of all affected and it is presumed they have nearly ceased to shiver in their boots through fear of losing their jobs.

Gov. Cox has made it plain that Gov. Harmon's recess appointments will not stand, and the senate will be given names other than those of gentlemen who have been in office only a few months. After the Baltimore convention it will be recalled Gov. Harmon displaced several men holding state places who opposed him for the presidential nomination, and it is the gentlemen who succeeded them who must now walk the plank.

Congressman W. A. Ashbrook of the 17th Ohio district gives no credence to the story sent out of Columbus that the state is to be redistricted so that it will be impossible for him to be re-elected. And those acquainted with W. A. will readily believe that he knows what he is talking about when he declares he will continue to represent the 17th district in the national legislature. The man or men who beat him to it must go a pace never traveled before.

Congressman John J. Whitacre's plain letters to the big manufacturers of the country who fear tariff revision is bearing fruit, many of them expressing a willingness to show their books to bear out claims that their business must have protection to be reasonably profitable. Mr. Whitacre took the position that manufacturers entitled to protection could secure it if they are open and frank in their statements and back them with their books. And that seems to be a very fair way to determine tariff rates on what they make.

YOUNGSTOWN

It is announced positively by Judge Geo. Rose of the Realty Security Co. that an electric line will be built this year from this city to Poland. His company has large land holdings in and near Poland and the opening of that territory will mean much to the people there as well as in this city.
The county commissioners will sell the old court house on the hill. Sealed bids for the property, which is very valuable, will be received until 11:30 a. m., Feb. 17.
It is likely no detective will be named for this county, hence a number of aspirants will be disappointed.
A. E. Adams has been elected president of the First National and Dollar banks, the largest financial institutions in the city, succeeding H. M. Garlick, who retires from active business on account of ill health.
The Saturday night closing notion is spreading. The Hartzel Bros. Co. is spreading the closing notion to announce in favor of the plan.
The iron and steel plants of the city show a thrift exceeding all previous records. All have contracts covering the entire output to October or longer. The managers evidently have no fear of the democratic administration putting their mills out of business.
That bandit who is looting railroad ticket offices will sooner or later get a pass to the penitentiary.
J. S. Butts, real estate dealer, arrested for auto "le" speaking, declared he would run in the city prison before he would pay a $10 fine. But his wife came around with the dough and he was released.
Judge Geo. F. Arrel is seriously ill, suffering from bronchitis.
Parcel post business in this city shows increase each week.
Creators of the Well-Hartzell Co. are being paid a dividend of 50 per cent, which is final.
Joe Weiss in getting names on his charter petition has proven that he is still a very live wire when anything that smacks of politics is going.
There promises to be the greatest building boom the coming season the city has ever had. Hundreds of people are pouring into town and they must be housed.
Dr. Silas Schiller, who came to this city years ago from North Lima, was stricken with paralysis Sunday, but his condition has since improved and it is now thought he will recover.
Out of all this row over the new charter commission it is hoped something entirely satisfactory to the general public will come.

YOUNG GIRL MISSING.

YOUNG GIRL MISSING.

Mrs. Edwin E. Eckenrode of 168 Gale street, Akron, has asked the police to locate her daughter, Ora Eckenrode, aged 17 years, who has been missing for several days. The mother formerly resided in Minerva. Twelve years ago she secured a divorce from her husband and the mother's belief that her daughter has been induced to go to California to join her father is strengthened by the fact that a similar attempt was made some years ago on the son now in the navy, who joined his father, but was so dissatisfied that he soon ran away from him and returned to the home of the mother in Minerva, O.
Another thing that points to the California theory is the manner in which the police were notified of the matter. Last Tuesday night a man, giving the name of Lake McLaughlin, called up the police and asked that they notify Mrs. Eckenrode that her daughter was in safe hands and was en route to California in the custody of a friend.

THE BRAVE MEN.

Here's to the men who laugh in the face of grim despair.
Who gather the stars and shaft
But sow with a cheerful air.
Here's to the smiling man
Who gives his life a blow,
And rises to the fight again
When others have laid them low.
Here's to the men who grin
When signs that they build go wrong,
And straightaway new plans begin
With courage and purpose strong.
Here's to the glad, brave men
Who, battling, expect a bruise,
And rise to the fight again
When others have laid them low.
Here's to the men who smile
With faith in the morning light,
And bravely meet the strife
Till victory crowns their fight.
Here's to the fighting men
That always succeed.
To rise to the first alarm
The brave in defeat we need.

The Canfield Dispatch is as lively and independent a local paper as finds its way to our table. Fowler's age and experience have not been wasted—Salem Republican. Foregoing refers to the elder Fowler, founder of the Dispatch, deceased.

Maupassant's Friend.

Who is—and was—the unknown friend of the gifted De Maupassant? She has just confided to a French review some prudent pages touching upon her relations with him. Le Cri de Paris says "the unknown" is a Slav, essentially French in culture, queen of the society of Paris and of St. Petersburg. She was the chosen confidant of his heart and of his genius. Among her fervent admirers was a prince, the younger son to a great name. He paid assiduous court to her and finally asked her hand in marriage. But "the unknown" renounced the prince to remain faithful to her great romance. She was, it is said, the inspirer of his romance "Notre Coeur," and he found in her the heroine of this masterpiece. And now, "the unknown" will turn her recollections into coin by her book "Guy de Maupassant intime," which will doubtless be sufficiently highly flavored to meet the Parisian taste.

Powder in the Sea.

It is calculated that in the depths of the sea, under 6,000 meters of water, there is a stratum of powder so infinitely fine that, were it broken in the fingers, it would penetrate the pores of the skin, this powder being made up of the remains of shells and the skeletons of little animals and plants. Each cubic centimeter of slime (or mud) that covers the bottom of the ocean contains the remains of ten thousand millions of organisms, each one of which is structurally as individual as the human body.
